| 40 | No, but I would like to suggest that there is a rule introduced that prevents allotment lease holders passing on their plots to various people meaning they never go back into the system. I know of many people who are making use of plots who have never been on the waiting list, because the lease holders no longer want to work the plot but still want to keep the keys! A 9 year wait and still no sign of an allotment...!! | 9/29/2015 9:25 AM |

| 42 | Next to balgreen school, waste land from the tram development. | 9/29/2015 6:12 AM |
| 43 | Not specifically. Would it be possible to enact a local law to make brownfield sites that are not being developed on available for short term 2-3 allotments. I used to live on Spey Terrace and the Shrub Hill bus depot site was wasteland for 15 years and has only recently been built on. Given that tax is not being collected on these sites they should be made available to locals for short-term allotment space on the understanding they have to be relinquished when imminent building plans are made | 9/28/2015 9:53 PM |
| 44 | no - sorry! | 9/28/2015 9:24 PM |
| 45 | 1. Areas on the periphery of golf courses, parks, woodlands and canals that may be suitable for siting more allotments without actually encroaching on the areas themselves. 2. Areas next to the tram line at Murrayfield, Balgreen, Saughton, Stenhouse, Carrikknowe, Gyle. 3. Areas near or around Herriot Watt University at Currie. 4. Areas near or around heading out of Balerno. 5. Areas near or around Ingleston and Edinburgh Airport. 6. Areas near or around the Royal Bank of Scotland Training School heading out the airport route from the Gyle Shopping Centre. 7. Would any of the farmers in the local surrounding area have any land on the periphery of their fields that they would be willing to give over for allotments. 8. Is there any wiggle room to expand the boundaries of any of the existing allotment sites to add some smaller/half plots. 9. Are any of the existing allotment holders struggling to maintain a full size allotment and so would maybe be willing to half the size of their allotment. | 9/28/2015 9:22 PM |

| 47 | Lauriston Castle, Granton Walled Garden | 9/28/2015 8:26 PM |
| 48 | I suspect this will be difficult because of ownership and land status, but I always thought that some of the edges around Holyrood park could be a good place to locate a handful of lots. Perhaps they could be setup in the way the allotment at the Dean Gallery was. On another matter about the administration of Edinburgh allotments, I think the allocation process would benefit from a clearer and more transparent notification and numbering system. I only have email correspondence to confirm my name is on the list and I have no idea how many people are on the list for the locations I am listed for, or what the rate of turnover is. | 9/28/2015 7:28 PM |

| 123 | Yes there seems to be lots of opportunities. Specifically, i would suggest some of the brownfield sites down by the seafield area of the shore could become nice sea view allotments. I think it is realistic to consider in the strategy turning some of the smaller areas nearer leith walk into small allotment sites. Like for example the site that was the B&Q on Easter Road and then was going to be a Lidl, and is still standing there unused. Clearly this is about converting a piece of ground that currently has a building on it, but actually that wouldn't take much strategically, and about 25 allotments can get on a site like that. | 9/25/2015 11:02 AM |

| 153 | I feel that you could make better use of Edinburgh parks (as you have done in Inverleith and have recently done in Victoria Park) e.g. could you not dedicate some space in Roseburn and King George 1V Parks. Also appreciate that Royal Botanic Gardens is not under your control but what about speaking to them to see if they can offer some space? | 160 | extended allotments at inverleith, or leith links. Off leith walk where all the housing is getting put up. surrounding golf courses like porty golf course. all of the green spaces between tenements in wester hailes. all the 'no ball games' bits of grass in leith between and around houses that need mowed by the council but just get used for walking dogs and are too full of dog mess for anyone to use for anything else. land around the ocean terminal and all the supermarkets down there. | 9/24/2015 9:54 PM |
| 161 | Any council owned land instead of being sold to property developers. All City parks could have allotments or shared food growing areas instead of being nothing but grass.. There is plenty of space. Smaller community based food growing areas for example all the communal gardens surrounding council owned tenement flats, many of which are laid to grass and often poorly maintained. Charities are already trying to do so much with community gardens so why cant the council follow some of these models. Tom Kirby in Granton, Leith Community Crops in Pots, Fountainbridge, Pilton, Lochend Secret Garden etc.A formal adoption and extension of Edinburgh Garden Partners model perhaps as well | 9/24/2015 9:53 PM |
| 162 | Part of the fallow land in Laurieston Castle at the rear of the large grassed bits. I would be happy with a single raised bed, or would help with a community garden. Also mctaggart and meikle have what used to be their site office on Craigcrook Road, now empty and awaiting "residents" (?) to decide what to do with it. Why not garden plots? What about the open land near the cycle path at Silverknowes? Or what about offering those on the allotment waiting list an opportunity to volunteer in community gardening projects run by the council. | 9/24/2015 9:53 PM |

| 170 | How about any of the many brown field sites that there are around Edinburgh; it would only need some tons of topsoil if the ground was ok. Corners of the larger parks. Use the private parks!!! They are enormous - maybe the current owners would give a corner of any of the private gardens/parks in New Town? Container allotments on hard ground. | 9/24/2015 8:55 PM |

| 174 | All green spaces are important and Edinburgh utilises most areas well. It is important I feel not to encroach on other loved areas and to try to use 'lost' sites. Behind museums and galleries, along railways and canals, hospital grounds and areas which have been cleared of intrusive plants might provide multiple small enclosures. | 9/24/2015 8:41 PM |

| 178 | Every park area in Edinburgh could allocate space for allotments including the Meadows and Queens Park/Arthur Seat. Every new build flat block in Edinburgh should be obliged to provide allotments or at least a shared allotment space. The many private schools in Edinburgh could also provide community allotments to give something back to the city. Princess street gardens would also be a great place but would have to be managed along the lines of the edible garden project at the Botanics. It would be a great advert for healthy eating in Scotland. | 9/24/2015 8:37 PM |

| 214 | Yes - there is a meadow or area of haugh land (Council owned) between the Water of Leith and the Balerno / Slateford walkway (former railway line) - a short distance to the East of the East portal of the Colinton Tunnel at Spylaw. The land is 'wild' i.e. it is not formal mown recreational space - there is some low growing 'scrub' vegetation. I have earlier drawn the Allotment Officer's attention to the site - but for whatever reason it was not taken up. In my personal opinion it is well worth a feasibility study. Vehicular access for 'setting up' purposes (i.e.fencing; paths; field drainage if required) can be taken from the walkway - car-parking for plot holders is less than 10 minute walk away at the car-park below Bridge Rd., Colinton - or 5 minutes walk from Lanark Road. Foot and cycle access is available to the perimeter of the site. Being next to the river the soil will be alluvial and have a natural fertility. Allotments at the location suggested would be unlikely to attract opposition. There is no capital outlay in buying land involved - as stated the land is already owned by the Council. There is a shortage of such sites - and this one deserves investigation on my view. | 9/24/2015 6:17 PM |

| 253 | I am waiting for an allotment at Inverleith as this location is closest to my home. In this area I am not aware of large areas of unused land suitable for allotments, but as soon as I now come across a site I will not hesitate in advising this survey. | 293 | The council needs to be more proactive here and find land that can be used or repurposed as there is a clear lack of interest and traction from anyone to take an interest in this and find a tangible solution. Serious consideration also needs to be given to the current structure, policies and process under which the existing allotment sites are managed. I understand that there continues to be people who have more than one plot due to historic reasons and I guess previous lack of demand. If this is still the case then this clearly needs to be amended. How many people across Edinburgh have more than one plot? By taking back plots from those that have more than one, dividing those plots in to two, how does that impact the immediate strain on the waiting list and pressure for new sites?? Why is this not the first priority, I suspect because no one has the courage to tackle it as the people who have had more than one plot for many years will likely be very vocal and object. However, if you want the community to succeed, interest to continue, income to increase (as I assume more plot as the result in dividing them up will increase revenue) and an ability to use these sites for more things such as education etc etc, then you need to change the status quo as it is currently not fit for purpose. I am more than happy to support the process and assist where I can. Please just get in touch. Thanks. | 9/24/2015 3:39 PM |

My new flat it's only 3 doors away from my old flat. Many thanks. | 9/24/2015 3:25 PM |
| 307 | Sadly, I don't. It seems that most free spaces are turned into flats. Fair enough, as it's unfortunately all about making money. | 9/24/2015 3:23 PM |
| 308 | more central sites. I've moved to Newington and there doesn't seem to be anywhere near here. Proximity makes it much more likely that use will be sustained - especially if without car, in full time work, and as primary carer for a toddler as I am. It must be said that my life has changed profoundly since I went on the waiting list - waiting such a long time makes it difficult to plan. And I'd be happy for a small patch in a community setting - with other like minded folk around to help/ learn from - I just want to be able grow vegetables and hang out gardening with my toddler. | 9/24/2015 3:22 PM |

| 313 | not really but the new allotments in Victoria park look good. There does seem to be empty green space around the Leith end of Ferry road | 9/24/2015 3:21 PM |
| 314 | Area next to Midmar allotments, to prevent unpopular possible housing development and provided it left enough access to Blackford hill. Possible area in green belt opposite Marie curie hospice on south side of Frogston road. Access already exists to childrens nursery and stables. The field east of Mounthooly road may also be good and is not ideal in shape. Likewise the field behind east of Buckstone primary school and adjoining Mortonhall golf course is an awkward shape and is used for horse pasture only. Sheltered and south east aspect, but vehicle access would need negotiating with Mhall estate. | 9/24/2015 3:20 PM |
| 315 | There are pockets of what appear to be semi-derelict land in / around town. I'm assuming that they are owned by property developers but it would be nice to see them being used in some respect while they lie vacant awaiting a change in the property market. | 321 | I like what was done just across the Waters of Leith from St Bernards' Crescent in Stockbridge, a small unused piece of land is now so attractive and vibrant. I am sure there are a lot of smaller sites that could be developed for allotments that people would be happy to have a half or quarter size allocations. | 9/24/2015 3:15 PM |

|-----|--|-------------------|
| 330 | Afraid not. But more importantly than new sites is stopping people no longer using allotments or even living in Edinburgh from simply passing on allotments to friends and family. I know this is happening and is the main reason for the long waiting lists. | 9/24/2015 3:12 PM |
| 331 | Anywhere in Leith - i know Leith Links is catered for, but perhaps other locations too. | 9/24/2015 3:12 PM |
| 332 | I can't answer the above other than to say that when the time comes I would like to be offered a full size plot for the area I have expressed an interest in. Though my understanding is that all new people accepted onto that site have to show their commitment via working on a smaller plot for six months prior to being offered the full plot. | 9/24/2015 3:11 PM |
| 333 | New town? Edge of dean gardens, opposite side of the water of leith. Warriston. | 9/24/2015 3:11 PM |
| 334 | No | 9/24/2015 3:11 PM |
| 335 | No | 9/24/2015 3:10 PM |
| 336 | Leith Links - next to the bowling green. There is a Leith Community Garden there - which is excellent and shouldn't be compromised. But there's a lot of extra space there that's not being used. It would be better for this space to be used and cared for properly, rather than the current state of affairs. This is as long as fencing could adequately keep out the drug users and the area could be safely cleaned up (as there are some syringes and things lying about). You'd probably need a bit of a buffer zone around the edges. Portobello also has a large brownfield site which is being developed for an Aldi and some housing - it would be great if some of this could become allotments - providing a green space for community use. Dig for victory! | 9/24/2015 3:09 PM |
| 337 | They could be anywhere but need to be reasonably close to peoples' homes. Managing an allotment is only possible for those of us with full time jobs and a young family if they are close by. That's why I've waited for Midmar. | 9/24/2015 3:09 PM |
| 338 | Disused railway sidings | 9/24/2015 3:09 PM |
| 339 | No. In addition to the answer to question 4 there are some raised beds in Stockbridge which would suit me fine. Stockbridge isn't the most convenient place for me so if there are any other sites with these sort of beds then that would be good to know. I definitely don't want a full size allotment. | 9/24/2015 3:08 PM |
| 340 | No | 9/24/2015 3:08 PM |
| 341 | (Don't know the whole of Edinburgh well enough to have spotted potential new allotment sites) | 9/24/2015 3:06 PM |
| 342 | Many sites around edinburgh could have 3--4 sites on them which would all add up | 9/24/2015 3:06 PM |
| 343 | ANYWHERE! Please build more! What about part of the new proposed park in Portobello? | 9/24/2015 3:06 PM |
| 344 | is there space at Meggetland, or at east end of Harrison Park? | 9/24/2015 3:05 PM |
| 345 | None that spring to mind. | 9/24/2015 3:04 PM |
| 346 | There is an area of glassland along side West Granton Access road. Save the council from cutting the grass and perhaps raise some revenue | 9/24/2015 3:04 PM |
| 347 | No unfortunately | 9/24/2015 3:04 PM |
| 348 | Lochend park | 9/24/2015 3:04 PM |
| 349 | Home base St Leonard's St instead of student housing | 9/24/2015 3:03 PM |
| 350 | No specific locations but perhaps a willingness to use smaller parcels of lands to provide smaller allotment sites in a more flexible way would be good | 9/24/2015 3:03 PM |
| 351 | East of the city, like Portobello/Northfield/Mountcastle/Duddingston. | 9/24/2015 3:03 PM |
| 352 | No. | 9/24/2015 3:03 PM |
| 353 | I'd really like access to an allotment near Leith if at all possible, but in all honesty, I can't think of other potential sites as I'm not overly familiar with areas of ground that may be suitable for this kind of activity. | 9/24/2015 3:02 PM |
| 354 | There are a lot of parcels of waste land around some parts of the city that I would like to see used, even if people understood only for a few years. | 9/24/2015 3:01 PM |
| 355 | Western harbour | 9/24/2015 3:01 PM |
| 356 | No. | 9/24/2015 3:01 PM |
| 357 | Public Parks | 9/24/2015 3:01 PM |
| 358 | Half of the copuncil run bowling greens that never get used in the summer. along the shore road between Granton and silverknowes has a lot of disused inditrial units. | 9/24/2015 3:00 PM |
