3.2 Determining Issues

Section 25 of the Town and Country Planning (Scotland) Act 1997 states - Where, in making any determination under the planning Acts, regard is to be had to the development plan, the determination shall be made in accordance with the plan unless material considerations indicate otherwise.

Do the proposals harm the character or appearance of the conservation area? If they do, there is a strong presumption against granting of permission.

Do the proposals comply with the development plan?

If the proposals do comply with the development plan, are there any compelling reasons for not approving them?

If the proposals do not comply with the development plan, are there any compelling reasons for approving them?

3.3 Assessment

To address these determining issues, the Committee needs to consider whether:

- a) the proposed use is acceptable in principle in this location;
- b) the impact on the conservation area and listed building;
- c) any impacts on equalities or human rights are acceptable; and
- d) the representations have been addressed.

a) Principal of Use

The permitted use of the property is as a residential flat. Flats do not fall within a defined use within the Town and Country Planning (Scotland) (Use Classes) Order 1997 and are 'sui generis'. Therefore any material change of use away from residential would require planning permission. A determining factor in the assessment of this application is whether the change in use of the flat from residential accommodation to short stay commercial visitor accommodation (SSCVA), not using the property as their principal home, is material.

Enforcement notices were served on several premises alleged to have been operating as SSCVA by both the City of Edinburgh Council and Glasgow City Council. Two appeals against these notices have been considered and determined by the Directorate for Planning and Environmental Appeals (DPEA) in respect of flatted properties at 2/5 Eyre Place, Edinburgh, and 1/3 332 Gallowgate, Glasgow.

Both appeal decisions specifically highlight the manner in which certain factors combine to form a change of use. These factors include the short term nature of the lets, guests being able to access shared and common areas within the buildings, and a frequency of turnovers indicating a pattern of frequent arrivals and departures and a lifestyle dissimilar to that of a permanent resident.

The current planning case law position in respect of the use of properties as short stay commercial visitor accommodation (SSCVA) in England, Scotland and Wales is set down in the English and Welsh Court of Appeal Judgement Sheila Moore v Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government & Suffolk District Council 2012 EWCA CIV 1202. This judgement held that the use of a residential premises for short term holiday lets could be a material change of use, with the question of materiality being one of fact and degree. An analysis of such fact and degree requires an assessment of factors such as the number of separate lets in any given period of time, number of individuals occupying the premises, the turnover of new individuals arriving and departing the premises; and the question as to whether the proposed operations would involve a change in character to such an extent that there may be disturbance to established residential character and amenity.

In terms of the development plan, the Edinburgh Local Plan (LDP) Policy Hou 7 - Inappropriate Uses in Residential Areas, states that uses which may be materially detrimental to the living conditions of nearby residents will not be permitted. The Council's Guidance for Businesses advises, in relation to the consideration of proposals for the establishment of short term commercial visitor accommodation, regard will be had to:

- the character of the new use and of the wider area;
- the size of the property;
- the pattern of activity associated with the use including number of occupants, the period of use, issues of noise, disturbance and parking demand; and
- the nature and character of any services provided.

The application site is a two bedroomed main door flat. The use proposed by the application would enable individuals to arrive and stay at the premises for a short period of time on a regular basis throughout the year in a manner dissimilar to that of permanent resident. Combined with the potential for a high level of turnover, the resultant effect of such operations would be a disturbance to the established residential character of the building which would have detrimental impact on residential amenity.

Having regards to the above, it is considered that the proposed change to a short stay commercial property at ground floor would be contrary to Policy Hou 7 and the non-statutory planning guidance for businesses.

b) Conservation Area and Listed Building

No physical alterations are proposed. There will be no impact on the Conservation Area or Listed Building.

c) Equalities and human rights

This application was assessed in terms of equalities and human rights. No impact was identified.

- loss of residential accommodation - this is addressed section 3.3 (a).
- loss of amenity to the existing residents - this is addressed in section 3.3 (a).

Conclusion
