Short Response	Yes
Explanation	We need to make the place principle a reality. This means that new development must put its principles into practice. This will ensure the long term value and sustainability of new places and add to the attractiveness of Edinburgh as a whole. Our members have already worked hard with local communities to deliver this policy. The Springside development by Grosvenor for example and community gardens. The plan for the new coastal town in Granton does offer an exemplar for the ambition of new settlements, and similarly the proposals for the Garden city complex in the West Edinburgh area have a detailed proposals for sustainable transport and green networks. New development will, however, be confined by land ownership and constraints should not be placed on development by unrealistic expectations of development on land outwith an applicant for planning permission's ownership.

Short Response Yes

Explanation

We believe it is critical to make an assessment of long term implications for maintenance and management, before applying any planning conditions for green space designations within new development proposals. It is important that if this is to involve contributions from new residents and businesses who may occupy areas involved with long-term maintenance and management arrangements, then it is very transparent. Where there are enhanced open spaces, which may serve a wide area rather than the immediate population, these should be maintained by the Council, just as existing large spaces are - there should not be an additional stealth tax for residents of new homes that doesn't affect residents in the rest of the city.

education and healthcare infrastructure development should deliver. Do you agree with this? - Yes / No

Explanation

The new Planning Act enables Local Place Plans to be proposed by local communities and proactive engagement by the planning service of the city is therefore essential. It is vitally important that the council, together with communities, key agencies and industry stakeholders are able to identify feasible infrastructure for new developments. It remains the case that significant objection occurs at the application stage on sites allocated in the Development Plan, so it is important that all avenues are explored by the City Council to engage communities in the difficult choices at the point of principle, thus reducing the current tendency for the Plan to be ignored and every application to be treated as a 'battle' that communities are inevitably seen to 'lose' on allocated sites.

We want to support Local Place Plans being prepared by our communities. City Plan 2030 will set out how Local Place Plans can help us achieve great places and support community ambitions. - How should the Council work with local communities to prepare Local Place Plans?

Short Response Not Answered

Explanation

The council will need to demonstrate to aspiring Place Plan teams how their plans will fit with the Development Plan. It seems reasonable to expect the City Council to provide resources, both in terms of direct funding and also advisory staff, to support communities in their endeayours to prepare plans. The Council must also encourage communities to understand that the Place Plan is a guide for the future, not a tool to prevent development from taking place and encourage them to engage with the thorny questions of where new development can be accommodated. The Council could also support LPPs through identifying the major questions and key stakeholders - business, housing, education, NHS, power, water - and use the city's influence to ensure these key sectors engage as appropriate with LPPs.

Choice 5 A

We want City Plan 2030 to direct development to where there is existing infrastructure capacity, including education, healthcare and sustainable transport, or where potential new infrastructure will be accommodated and deliverable within the plan period. Do you agree with this? - Yes / No

Short Response Yes

Explanation

We support an infrastructure-led approach to new development. Therefore it is important to plan, adapt and innovate as necessary, in order to develop the appropriate infrastructure for new developments and indeed, to retrofit key infrastructure for existing communities. Where major new infrastructure is required, a wide view must be taken on how it is to be funded, as developer contributions may not be a suitable mechanism to achieve the development of high schools etc.

Explanation	Yes but again there needs to be a balance whereby developments that support EV infrastructure - for example through EV supportive parking, and therefore promote the use of electric vehicles, are rewarded. It is important also not to create another layer of hypothetical assessment that has to be undertaken, disputed and debated with every single planning application, to the benefit of nobody except planning consultants. As per our answer in 6A, people who have somewhere secure to leave their car may be more likely to use public transport. We should also take care to recognise that the model of everyone travelling in to the City Centre to work is unrealistic and that people's employment patterns can be dispersed widely and that some residents will need to go to work in their vehicles.

We want City Plan 2030 to require a mix of housing types and tenures – we want the plan to be prescriptive on the required mix, including the percentage requirement for family housing and support for the Private Rented Sector. Do you agree with this? - Yes / No

Short Response No

Explanation

The 2030 CityPlan should aspire to increase housing of all tenures and we are concerned that a narrow prescriptive approach could undermine this aspiration. Members that build and sell houses are best placed to determine the mix of housing types and tenures that can be delivered, although all would generally support the development of family housing and enhancement of the PRS. An overly prescriptive approach could have the undesirable effect of reducing housing provision in the City, as site viability can be affected by the over zealous application of prescriptive requirements. The vision for a growing population ought to be growth across all sectors as necessary to meet the various housing demands.

Which option do you support? - Option 1/2/3

Explanation

The city needs to use both green belt and brownfield land to meet its urgent housing needs in the course of this plan. The Greenbelt will be controversial no doubt, but the city needs to expand, making best use of its wider resources to support its population, rather than see housing developed in the surrounding regions, which inevitably drives longer and less sustainable commuting patterns. If the Greenbelt development is planned and delivered appropriately then it will support the sustainable economic growth of the city and the new communities that will need to be established and sustained. The centralised control of land proposed in the first option seems unrealistic and unnecessary. Care should be taken in relation to the re-use of urban land in current use, where local communities may object to the loss of existing facilities. The debate over the re-use of land in Leith Walk should serve as a reminder as to why such approaches may not be successful in reality.

Short Response	The use of Supple
Explanation	The retail sector is facing significant challenges, many of which have been apparent for several years. The covid-19 crisis is accelerating many of these challenges. There should be a general description of support for the sector. Change will also need to incorporate an assessment of the demand and needs for delivery based retail services.

We want to support new hotel provision in local, town, commercial centres and other locations with good public transport access throughout Edinburgh. Do you agree with this approach? - Yes / No

Short Response Yes

Explanation

Before Covid-19 this was an important area of jobs, investment and economic growth for the city. it is too early to say if there will be long term changes to the growth of the tourist market and the plan should be flexible to adapt to any change in expected hotel demand. However, we agree with the principle of supporting new hotel development with access to public transport.

Explanation	The demand for retail space has dropped in general, with a move towards consolidation in prime retail centres and locations. This means a lack of demand for many previous retail stores which now need a new purpose. If a change of use can be successfully promoted, this will retain footfalls and activity in the city.

We want to introduce a loss of office policy to retain accessible office accommodation. This would not permit the redevelopment of office buildings other than for office use, unless existing office space is provided as part of denser development. This would apply across the city to recognise that office locations outwith the city centre and strategic office locations are important in meeting the needs of the mid-market. Or we could Introduce a 'loss of office' policy only in the city centre. - Yes / No

Short Response

I support no chang

Explanation

We believe that a loss of office policy is an unnecessary restraint on the potential for the market to adapt buildings and development opportunities. It could lead to an unnecessary requirement on developers to provide alternative office supply in locations that simply cannot sustain the demand for this mode of occupation. For example, where there is an over-supply of older office properties around Haymarket, or where offices were actually developed from former residential properties and developers wish to revert the building to its original use.

We want to introduce a policy that provides criteria for locations that we would support city-wide and neighbourhood goods distribution hubs. Do you agree? - Yes / No

Short Response Yes

Explanation

The covid-19 crisis has shone a light on the need for strong logistical networks including local facilities. Local distribution of goods and services will reduce the need for travel, particularly on roads and thus support carbon emissions reduction, as well as localised employment.
